Final resting place:

Vatican releases instruction on burial of cremation

VATICAN CITY (CNS) Professing belief in the resurrection of the dead and affirming that the human body is an essential part of a person's identity, the Catholic Church insists that the bodies of the deceased be treated with respect and laid to rest in a consecrated place.

While the Catholic Church continues to prefer burial in the ground, it accepts cremation as an option, but forbids the scattering of ashes and the growing practice of keeping cremated remains at home, said Cardinal Gerhard Muller, prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

"Caring for the bodies of the deceased, the church confirms its faith in the resurrection and separates itself from attitudes and rites that see in death the definitive obliteration of the person, a stage in the process of reincarnation or the fusion of one's soul with the universe," the cardinal told reporters Oct. 25.

In 1963, the congregation issued an instruction permitting cremation as long as it was not done as a sign of denial of the basic Christian belief in the resurrection of the dead. The permission was incorporated into the Code of Canon Law in 1983 and the Code of Canons of the Eastern Churches in 1990.

However, Cardinal Muller said, church law had not specified exactly what should be done with "cremains," and several bishops' conferences asked the congregation to provide guidance.

The result, approved by Pope Francis after consultation with other Vatican offices and with bishops' conferences and the Eastern churches' synods of bishops, is "Ad resurgendum cum Christo" ("To Rise with Christ"), an instruction "regarding the burial of the deceased and the conservation of the ashes in the case of cremation." Presenting the instruction, Cardinal Muller said, "shortly, in many countries, cremation will be considered the ordinary way" to deal with the dead, including for Catholics.

Cremation, in and of itself, does not constitute a denial of belief in the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body, the instruction says. Nor does it "prevent God, in his omnipotence, from raising up the deceased body to new life."

However, the Catholic Church wholeheartedly recommends continuing the "pious practice of burying the dead," Cardinal Muller said. It is considered one of the corporal works of mercy and, mirroring the burial of Christ, it more clearly expresses hope in the resurrection when the person's body and soul will be reunited.

Evening Prayer (Vespers)

Those taking part in the liturgy of the hours have access to holiness of the richest kind through the life-giving word of God, which in this liturgy receives great emphasis. Thus its readings are drawn from sacred Scripture, God's words in the psalms are sung in his presence, and the intercessions, prayers, and hymns are inspired by Scripture and steeped in its spirit.

Join us every Sunday at St. Teresa Church @ 6:00pm

Stewarding Our Gifts:
"Fully Alive as Missionary Disciples."

June 30, 2019
Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

1 Kgs 19:16B, 19-21; Gal 5:1, 13-18; Lk 9:51-62

Today's readings offer an important look at what it means to be a disciple and steward. It is clear that discipleship involves leaving behind a particular way of life and stepping with faith into the unknown. We see Elisha agree to accompany Elijah, but only after saying goodbye to his family. And wouldn't we want to do the same?? Similarly, when Jesus approached the disciples, one of them said, "let me go first and bury my father," and another said, "but first let me say farewell to my family at home." In baptism, we have all been called into discipleship. So what is your "but first" that is keeping you from being FULLY ALIVE as a disciple? What are you holding on to? Jesus says we are not to look to what was left behind. Being a disciple of Jesus gives us a new identity — one that is full of promise and adventure. It requires us to look forward and follow Him faithfully. Let us enthusiastically embrace this new identity in Jesus Christ.
